prisoners in a like manner. Three of the ringleaders have been identified. They are named Stokes, Stewart and Brown, all of vicious character and each an expert with a gun. Floyd Hall, another desperate killer, is also with the rioters.

Anticipating that the prisoners might succeed in attempting to cut the electric wires within the prison, authorities last night brought reserve searchlights outside the walls and prepared to cut them in on an outside power line.

Dr. T. W. Day, the prison physician, was one of the outstanding figures in the rioting of yesterday. He was able to arrange a temporary truce and entered the old cell block and attended the wounded and dying convicts. It was Dr. Day who brought word to the outside that the infuriated convicts intended to kill the captured guards if officers moved against them.

The mutiny began yesterday without warning. Nothing unusual had occurred on Thanksgiving Day. Some of the prisoners were attending a motion picture show and others were milling about in the yard awaiting a chance to get into the show.

Suddenly Charles Gorbansen, a guard, was surrounded by several prisoners. Placing a knife at his back, they marched him to a door leading to the administration building. They threatened the guard with death if he did not order the turnkey, on the other side, to open the door. The turnkey not having the keys, Gorbansen's order could not be obeyed. Gorbansen was promptly knifed and his captors, yelling started running through the cell house.

Then bedlam turned loose. A volley of shots rang out. Where the prisoners got their arms and ammunition is not known.

Ray Singleton was hit by one of the first shots. A convict stabbed him as he fell. His body was picked up by other guards who raced for the door. Among them was Walter Neil, who was shot and stabbed as he carried his keys to safety.

During the general melee, Al Dealy, a guard was stabbed.

Meanwhile, while other guards were repelling the convicts from the main gate, Warden Smith and his secretary, Barnett Huse, were trapped in the administration building.

Smith and Huse made a dash for safety just as machine gunners and guards, armed with tear bombs, launched an attack against prisoners in the library building. The prisoners answered with a hot fire. Huse was struck in the hip by one of the bullets. He was not seriously wounded. Warden Smith reported.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

Reducing Helps

As you know, I advise you who need to reduce to attend institutions that have medical supervision and give supervised exercises, baths, massage, etc., if you can. For the fact that you are paying out your good money, helps you to keep to your diet better.

O. yes, you have a diet also! You can put on much more than any help will take off, if you don't watch your calories.

There are many—those who are excessively overweight or have heart disease or high blood pressure, etc.—who cannot take active exercises; and the mechanical appliances such as the rollers, body shakers, abdominal massage machines, and other apparatus, can be used, for they do not cause any strain on the heart. As in active exercise, however, it is wise to begin with only a small amount and gradually increase such exercises.

Yes, I advise you to attend such institutions if you can. But poor me! I ruin my reputation if I am seen at one, if I am to judge of a conversation I had with a woman guest—we had not been introduced—when I came to the Battle Creek Sanitarium this time on my third visit. She was complaining that while she did not come to reduce, she needed to and was not losing. I asked her how many calories she was on, and if she did not take more food than the dietitian marked off for her on her menu.

"Humph!" she sorta sneered, "I don't pay any attention to calories. There's nothing in knowing about them. Why, that Lulu Hunt Peters, who wrote that famous book on calories, has to come here when she wants to reduce, so I've been told!"

"Well," I sweetly responded, "the next time you hear that deny it, please. Tell your informant that you have met Dr. Peters, and that she comes here for a rest and to study their methods. She may reduce a few pounds while here, but she does not have to come to reduce."

"But I haven't met her!" she slightly indignantly responded. Then I introduced myself, and we had a good laugh together.

Yesterday I gave you a Thanksgiving menu such as they serve at the Battle Creek Sanitarium. If you missed yesterday's paper I wish you would get it, for I know you will enjoy the Mock Turkey Roast, for which I gave the recipe.

As I told you, I am spending the tag end of my vacation here, trying to get some work done that I promised to do on my vacation, and incidentally I am going to try to get off some of the excess ten pounds I put on while in Los Angeles. It really is difficult for me to reduce here, for I am very fond of their vegetarian cuisine and I have the very good excuse that I want to sample many of the different dishes so that I can write about them.

There is a cooking school connected with the institution, where they teach their cookery and it is most popular. After the things are cooked a good time is had by all, for the dishes that are cooked are passed around to be sampled. You'd be surprised—no, you wouldn't, if you are overweight—to see the large percentage of the reducing patients that attend! Then you'd

THE IDEAL WINTER TIME GAS
At No Increase In Price

DEYQTEES of sports have marveled at the quickness of the basketball player in the first get-away. It's a veritable demonstration of speed developed to the highest degree.

On frosty days you've wished for a motor-fuel that would ignite instantly at the first touch of the starter and enable you to get your machine under way without overworking the battery and long choking.

Such a fuel is "Loreco 88," now available at all Loreco Service Stations. With an initial boiling point of 88 degrees, "Loreco 88" begins to vaporize as soon as it is sprayed from the carburetor. As your motor warms up the rate of combustion continues evenly, furnishing more and more power as speed increases.

"Loreco 88" is the ideal winter time gas, and at no increase in price.

TO RELIEVE STOMACH DILATION, GAS

Dilation of the stomach usually arises because excess stomach acid causes food to ferment and form sour gasses which are responsible for those unpleasant sensations of swelling and fullness, often very painful.

To avoid and relieve stomach dilation take a tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after meals or when pain is felt. "Pape's Diapiesin" neutralizes acidity and prevents the formation of wind, heartburn and flatulence, and insures healthy, painless digestion.

Druggists everywhere sell "Pape's Diapiesin" at 60 cents a package—not much to pay for complete freedom from digestive pain and stomach troubles, is it? Better get your package of "Pape's Diapiesin" to-day.

When I was a small baby I had eczema on my body and my mother used Resinol Ointment on it. As she recommended it to me at this time, in desperation I decided to send for a sample of Resinol. # Central High Battles Springfield To 6 To 6 Tie

XENIA OUTPLAYS BLUE AND GOLD IN THANKSGIVING DAY CONTEST

Team Closes Season With Three Wins, Three Defeats And Four Ties—Turkey Day Battle Fitting Climax

FIGHTING with a new-found fury, an inspired Central High School football eleven fought throughout sixty minutes of play to a 6 to 6 tie with Springfield High School in the fourteenth renewal of their annual Thanksgiving Day struggle for gridiron supremacy Thursday afternoon at South Side Field, Springfield.

For the first time in the years of rivalry between the two schools, the rival elevens tied the field with honors even. Perhaps it was better thus for all concerned, as the no decision affair permitted each school to close its football season with a record of an even number of games won and lost. It was the fourth tie game played by Xenia this year.

If a moral victory is to be awarded, the choice would undoubtedly go to the Blue and White, which outplayed, outsmarted and outgeneraled the Gold and Blue eleven throughout the contest. Spectacular plays netted both teams touchdowns in the second quarter, which was the limit of the scoring. After that it was give and take.

Xenia was the first to score, due to a beautiful fifty-five yard run by Captain Morton through a broken field. Receiving a kick on his own thirty-eight yard line, the Central leader gathered in the ball and galloped to Springfield's seventy-yard line before being brought to a halt by a diving tackle by "Sparky" Adams, sensational colored halfback. Adams was so badly injured on the play he was forced out of the contest.

With the ball in a scoring position, Buell plunged through guard over the line on the play. Gibe's place kick for the sorely needed extra point, was low and was blocked.

Springfield took to the air to register its single touchdown in the same period. Xenia kicked off to Springfield's ten-yard line. Kirk, subbing for Adams, ran it back thirty-five yards. After one play had failed to gain, the home eleven was penalized fifteen yards for clipping. A Xenia lineman broke through and partially blocked Davidson's punt, which was good for only fifteen yards.

Central lost twelve yards on a poor pass from center and Captain Morton kicked accurately out of bounds on Springfield's fifteen-yard stripe. Davidson promptly punted and Morton fumbled in mid-field, Belcher recovering for Springfield.

A series of line plays brought the ball deep into Xenia territory and a pass, Patterson to Captain Davidson, was completed for twenty yards and a touchdown that evened the count. Springfield tried to take pass play for extra point but Higgins sneaked through the line and tackled the ball-carrier before he could get the pignisk away. The half ended shortly afterward.

The opening quarter was featured by a punting duel between the rival captains, Morton and Davidson, with the Xenia pilot having a distinct edge. Springfield was entirely on the defensive in this period.

Throughout the first half, Xenia was strictly the aggressor, tearing into the line and secondary defense with a ferocity it had not shown in previous games. The Central stalwarts in this part of the contest swept Springfield off its feet, literally and figuratively.

Throughout most of the second half, a stubborn defense on both sides neutralized most of the attacks.

Shortly after the third quarter had gotten under way, Morton's punt on his own fifteen yard line was partly blocked and Springfield recovered on the thirteen-yard line. Conn made in first down on the three-yard line on one plunge.

It was here that Xenia's line displayed a heroic defense. Springfield backs stabbed desperately to pierce the Blue and White wall, only to find it stone. Three plunges took the ball to the three-inch line. On the fourth down, Conn charged the center of the line to cross the few inches that meant a touchdown, but when the players were untangled, the ball lacked three yards instead of inches from being over.

Morton hit the line for no gain and then dropped back to punt. He was hurried and kicked out of bounds on his own ten-yard line. Patterson hurled a pass to Davidson, who had a clear field for a touchdown, but the Springfield captain slipped in the muddy going on the four-yard line.

Once more Springfield was set back by the determined stand of Xenia's line and surrendered the ball on downs. This time Xenia punted out of danger.

In the fourth quarter, the play was almost entirely in Springfield's territory. On one occasion Xenia brought the ball to Springfield's twenty-yard line. Captain Morton turned end for a first down on Springfield's forty-three and then a pass, Morton to Bell, was completed for a twenty-three yard gain.

Line plays and passes were unavailing and Xenia lost the ball on downs on the sixteen yard line. Near the end of the period Morton kicked to Springfield's twenty-two. Beard, safety man, fumbled, and Mowen recovered for Xenia, on the thirty-five. Morton hit tackle for three and Scurry added two more, the game ending with the ball on the thirty-yard line.

Xenia appeared to be at its best this season despite a week of poor practice because of inclement weather.

Xenia registered seven first downs as compared with six for Springfield.

Captain Morton closed his scholastic career in a blaze of glory. He was without a doubt the individual star of the day. His kicking was also above the average and he consistently out-punted his opponent except for the one or two occasions when he was forced to hurry the boots.

Other players also stood out prominently. The play of Scott and Higgins on the line is worthy of special mention. Bell, who will be

Wilberforce And West Virginia Play To Tie

ANNUAL TURKEY DAY CLASSIC ENDS WITH ELEVENS TIED 12-12

Failure To Register Extra Points Fatal To Both Elevens

BEFORE a fan's ardent wish for a Wilberforce University and West Virginia Institute battle to a 12 to 12 tie, in the 1927 renewal of their annual Turkey Day football struggle at Neil Park, Columbus, Thursday afternoon.

Two touchdowns were registered by each eleven but each team was unfortunate in that it did not possess a reliable player to kick the point after touch.

West Virginia, as always, furnished unexpectedly stiff opposition. Wilberforce confined its scoring to the second period and registered its first touchdown on an eighty-five yard march from its own fifteen-yard line.

Campbell, halfback, started the ball rolling when he broke through the scrimmage line and ran forty-six yards through a broken field. The reliable Ward added fifteen yards on the next play and then a pass to Ward placed the ball on the ten-yard stripe.

Tynes, plunging fullback, carried the ball to within a foot of the goal line, and Campbell shot across on the next play. Harding missed the try for extra point.

Undiscouraged, the invading Southerners came back in the same period to even the score. A Wilberforce fumble was recovered by a West Virginia lineman on the Ohio team's thirty-yard mark.

A well-executed pass, Branch to Hurdley, placed the pignisk on the eleven-yard line. After two line plays, McConnell plunged across on the third attempt, for the touchdown. Nash missed the drop-kick for extra point.

Before the half ended, Wilberforce scored once more by taking advantage of a "break." Harding sailed a long punt from his own thirty-yard line to the West Virginia five, where Nash, safety man, fumbled, and Ward recovered for Wilberforce on the one-foot line.

Mendenhall went over on the next play. Harding again failed to tally the sorely-needed point.

Fighting with grim determination, West Virginia rallied to even the count again in the third period. Nash returned the opening pick-off to the Wilberforce forty-three to start his team off in the right fashion. McConnell gained thirteen yards in three straight line smashes and then West Virginia took to the air.

A pass, Branch to Nash, was completed on the fourteen-yard stripe. Then line plays were attempted and on the fourth plunge, McConnell ran across the final line for a score. West Virginia then switched its tactics and attempted to complete a pass for the point which meant victory, but the aerial was intercepted.

Both elevens tried desperately to break the dead lock in the final quarter but the defensive play prohibited further scoring.

Wilberforce obtained two breaks in the final quarter but lacked an offensive punch at critical moments and could not take advantage of them.

On one occasion, Ward tried a place kick from the West Virginia thirty-five yard line, but the boot lacked distance. Nash, using poor judgment, caught the kick near the goal posts, and was downed on his three-yard line. Nash then uncorked a poor punt which traveled only eighteen yards but Wilberforce could gain only six yards on four plays and lost the ball on the twelve-yard line. The game ended soon afterward.

Wilberforce thus closed another one of its most successful seasons, having won five games, tied two and lost one by forfeit. Discounting the forfeit, Wilberforce piled up 154 points to its opponents' eighteen during the season. The team's goal line was crossed on but three occasions.

SPRINGFIELD AUTOIST KILLED AT CROSSING NEAR OSBORN

One person was killed and another injured, not seriously, when a sedan, driven by a man, was struck by a Big Four freight train and wrecked at the Clark County line, between Eton and Osborn, at 4:45 o'clock Thursday night.

Harry Kohl, Sr., 58, 204 Willis Ave., Springfield, a married man, was killed instantly. Mrs. Alice Kohl, 223 S. Center St., Springfield, Kohl's companion in the car, sustained deep cuts about the face, and was removed to City Hospital in Springfield.

The woman told hospital attendants that she and her companion were returning to Springfield after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Lena Wilson, of near Wright Field.

Sheriff Walter S. Lewis, Clark County, who was investigating another minor accident about 200 yards from the crossing at the time, learned from the engineer on the train that the sedan was driven up to the crossing, stopped and then drove in front of the train, the driver apparently not noticing the train.

The engineer declared he blew the whistle several times and eyewitnesses of the crash confirmed his testimony.

24 Hours Ends COLDS

A "common cold" may result in grippe or flu. At the very first sign, go to a drug store and get a box of HILL'S. Take promptly. HILL'S breaks up a cold in 24 hours because it does the four vital things at once—stops the cold, checks the fever, opens the bowels and tones the system. Red box, 30 cents.

YOUTH HURT WHEN GUN DISCHARGES ON HUNTING TRIP

William Eichman, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Eichman, N. King St., was shot in the left foot, when the thirty-six gauge shotgun he was carrying discharged while the boy was walking through high weeds, while hunting with his father, near Cedarville, Thanksgiving morning.

The boy is being cared for at the office of Dr. Marshall Best, where he was rushed by his father after the accident. An x-ray of the injured foot was taken Friday morning and the injury is not thought serious.

The gun was discharged when a weed became caught in the trigger.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how:

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead take a little Cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is, in fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after turning down the petition of a Zamboanga liquor dealer for refund of taxes amounting to $1,000, which he claimed were so high as to ruin his business.

The Philippines are the only place under the American flag where inhabitants are free to drink or not, as they choose. The constitution does not apply to the islands, in accordance with the Jones Act. The American secretary of state some years ago made an attempt to prohibit the importation of liquor into the Philippines by forbidding American consuls abroad to issue bills of health to ships carrying consignments of liquor for the Philippines. The insular government evaded this order easily, by the simple process of fitting such ships only $10 each, instead of the usual fine of $2,000 or more for vessels entering the Philippines without clean bills of health.

The only way to make the Philippines dry is by a special act of the American congress. People here do not seem to be worrying much about that.

taking. Instead of being clogged worse than ever, the bowels are more inclined to move OF THEIR OWN ACCORD. You may have to take cascara several times to establish regularity. But the times you need this gentle stimulus grow further apart. And you NEVER find you must increase the amount.

Cascara's ideal form is the candy cascaret that pleases any palate, and you'll find them at the first drugstore you ask.

ACCUSED TEACHER EXONERATED WHEN CHARGE WITHDRAWN

Withdrawal of a charge of assault against Miss Leona Drewess, teacher in the McPherson grade school in Spring Valley Twp., and dismissal of the case by R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace, is regarded by the teacher and school officials as complete vindication.

An affidavit sworn out Wednesday by Clyde Faulkner, Lower Bellbrook Pike, charging the teacher with assaulting his twelve-year-old son, Robert, pupil in the seventh grade at the McPherson school, was withdrawn by the father Thursday.

An explanation of the case was furnished Friday by school officials, who exonerated Miss Drewess from blame for the incident.

The affidavit accused the teacher with striking the boy while attempting to discipline him Wednesday. School officials, preparing to defend the teacher, expected to introduce witnesses who would testify that the teacher did not strike the youth, school authorities said Friday. School officials said Friday they had every confidence in Miss Drewess and supported her policy in disciplining the boy.

WOMAN AUTO DRIVER HURT IN ACCIDENT NOW IMPROVING

Improvement was noted Friday in the condition of Mrs. Ernest Bradford, Trebein Road, confined in McClellan Hospital with serious injuries sustained when her coupe skidded and upset in a ditch on Lucas hill, Dayton-Xenia Pike, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Bradford suffered fractures of the collar-bone and two ribs, injuries to the left lung and bruises about the legs, an X-ray examination made at the hospital Thursday morning, disclosed.

Mrs. Bradford was driving home when the coupe skidded on the slippery roadbed and overturned in a ditch on the west side of the pike, after she had applied the brakes while descending the hill.

A cake of ice in the car bruised her legs. Passing motorists assisted her in climbing out of the car and an ambulance took her to the Xenia hospital.

AUTO DAMAGED WHEN IT STRIKES WAGON

A sedan driven by William L. Wike, taxi driver, of near Yellow Springs, formerly of Xenia, was slightly damaged when it collided with a wagon on the Cincinnati Pike, two miles south of Xenia, Wednesday night.

The accident occurred near the home of Roby Bartlett, who was driving the horse and wagon toward Xenia.

TRUCK DRIVER HAS HAIR SINGED WHEN GAS CATCHES FIRE

Raymond Kelly, truck driver for the Red Wing Co., narrowly escaped being burned when the truck caught fire as the rear tank was being filled with gasoline at the Peoples Oil Co., filling station, Lower Bellbrook Ave., Friday morning at 8:03 o'clock.

Kelly was leaning over the tank as the station attendant was filling it with gasoline, when the fuel suddenly blazed into flame, becoming ignited in some unknown manner. The driver jumped backward but not before his hair had been slightly scorched.

The damage was slight. Firemen, answering the alarm, extinguished the flames with chemicals.

Cornwell, Greene County road patrolman, for Springfield authorities in connection with an auto accident Tuesday night in which Milton Canada, 75, Selma, sustained serious injuries, was released following an investigation by Deputy Sheriff Stanley Hathaway and Adolph Long, of Clark County.

Cornwell made the arrest at the direction of Sheriff Ohmer Tate, acting upon instructions from Springfield.

The boy was taken to South Charleston and held by Marshal Charles Sprague until the arrival of Clark County deputy sheriffs. The accident was termed "unavoidable." HAREM CARAVAN FOR ARABIAN KING SENT FROM LONDON FIRM
LONDON, Nov. 21—A wonderful motor harem has just glided through the streets of London en route for the desert.
This harem, a marvelous motor caravan, has just been completed at the Star works, and was on its way to Arabia.
The man who has helped the King of Arabia to design his new fleet of cars is Stuart Marr, who served in Arabia under Colonel Lawrence.
"The car will carry the Royal wives across the desert at fifty five miles an hour," says Marr. "The King is constantly making long journeys from Mecca to Medina and across to the Persian Gulf. He naturally wants his wives to go with him. But they must never be seen by men, and the King is very strict about it."
"So these cars—there are two of them—were made to carry his twenty-four wives from place to place. There are no windows, light being admitted through opaque glass in the roof. The twelve wives are locked in, and an electric fan keeps them cool—more or less. They may have to travel as much as 1,100 miles in there. They sit six aside, on the pile of carpet which is fixed to the floor of the car."
"Two other cars of the same size are open. They are for the King's guard of fifty warriors. Armed to the teeth, these picked fighting men will travel with the King and his wives, and woe betide anyone who gets in the way."
"There are also four touring cars for the King and his suite. These will do sixty-five miles an hour."
"The fleet of eight cars has cost $55,000. Each car is covered in polished aluminium. "Enormous" tires, costing $375 a set, were specially made to bear the load in the rough desert."

The Theater

A birthday is being celebrated this week in Times Square, a first anniversary which means as much to Broadway as anything which has struck the famous street of amusements in months and months.

It is the end of the first year of operation of the Paramount Theater, most conspicuous of all New York's amusement centers, located "at the crossroads of the world." During this year, a mighty parade of more than 5,200,000 persons passed through the doors of this theater. This means an average of more than 100,000 a week. The after an extended stay in Paris... F. Schumann-Heink, son of the famous operatic contralto, Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, has gone into the movies. At twenty, Wesley Barry, one of the most popular screen youngsters a few years ago, is going to stage a comeback after a vacation from the films while doing stage work.

biggest week's business during the first year was done by George Bancroft's smashing melodrama, "Underworld," which called forth additional midnight performances and took in gross box office receipts of $81,855.

The movies are getting under the big tent. Make way for a flood of circus pictures! Just like there was a cycle of war pictures, comedies, and other films of the same type, Hollywood has gone circus enthusiastic. Charlie Chaplin started it when he began production on his forthcoming frolic, "The Circus." While work on his film was halted by his domestic troubles, other producers had a chance to beat him to the market with their new circus pictures. Paramount has two circus comedies coming, "Two Flaming Youths," and a revival of "Tillie's Punctured Romance." In the original "Tillie," there was no more circus business than you find in "Hamlet" but circus stuff has been injected into the new film wholesale. First National will make "The Barker," a show film, based on the stage success.

Money Love
By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST: LILY LEXINGTON, the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, who have always lived far beyond their means, is engaged to a rich bachelor, STALEY DRUMMOND. The wedding day is set for June.

The day after Staley proposes Lily goes downtown to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by him. Then she sees that he is a taxi driver. But moved by some sudden, strong impulse, she jumps into his cab, forgetting Sue Cain, and he drives her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He tells it to raise money to finance a piston ring invention of his, and tells Lily he is going to get some other kind of work.

As the days go by it becomes clear to her that she is in love with him. But about the time she firmly makes up her mind that she cannot marry Staley her mother announces the engagement and she resigns herself to marrying him on the tenth of June. Then, along about the tenth of May she morning to look at a new car that her mother has bought, and the new chauffeur, who is polishing it, is Pat France! He admits that he took the job because it enables him to be near her until the time of her wedding—and Lily wonders if that wedding will ever take place after all. For she falls more and more deeply in love with Pat, and while he says she will never make a poor man's wife, he is just as madly in love with her. He takes her to meet his friends, the Jettersons, and she instantly detests SADY JETTERSON, who is flamboyant and loud and cheerful. Then she goes to meet his family—his mother and father and sister, FLORENCE, on a night after Staley Drummond has learned about her attachment for Pat from a discharged maid, Carrie. The next morning Mrs. Lexington, determined to get rid of Pat, tells him he will have to wait on table that night. Pat packs up to go, and Lily makes a quick decision to go with him. Mrs. Lexington stops Pat in the yard, and Lily comes up to him to hear the news that he must then wait place after all. For she falls more and more deeply in love with Pat, and while he says she will never make a poor man's wife, he is just as madly in love with her. He takes her to meet his friends, the Jettersons, and she instantly detests SADY JETTERSON, who is flamboyant and loud and cheerful. Then she goes to meet his family—his mother and father and sister, FLORENCE, on a night after Staley Drummond has learned about her attachment for Pat from a discharged maid, Carrie. The next morning Mrs. Lexington, determined to get rid of Pat, tells him he will have to wait on table that night. Pat packs up to go, and Lily makes a quick decision to go with him.

CHAPTER XXII Mrs. France opened the oven door and took out a pan of the biscuits, golden brown and shining with butter. She set them on the top of the "hot closet" of the big, white-enamel stove, and put a pan of unbaked ones into the oven.

"Is that the Sue Cain who rides so much?" she asked, giving Lily and the cigarette-smoke clouds a look that Lily did not see. "I often notice her name in the paper."

"Yes, that's Sue Cain," answered the girl, absently. She was wondering how Sue Cain would take this marriage of hers. "Would she still be her best friend, or would she think that she ought to be loyal to Staley and drop her?"

"Sue's Jack and Staley were great friends."

"Quick footsteps came around the house and Pat opened the screen door."

"Well, I'm all set!" he announced, tossing his hat up on the hooks beside the door. "Roy's given me a job in the garage—and he and Sadye are going to stand up with us when we're married. They're going to give us a little blow-out at their house tonight, too. Isn't that kind of them? They're the salt of the earth, Lily."

"Yes, they're very nice people," his mother said quietly. "But Mrs. Jetterson wears her skirts too short. It doesn't look right for a grown woman to show that much of her body—she wears them almost to her knees."

She glanced at Lily's skirt that was just above hers, as she looked in the kitchen chair. But Lily did not notice her glance. She was looking at Pat and frowning. She didn't want to go to the Roy Jetterson's that night. She didn't want to be friends with that fat-faced, pink woman who was such a great friend of Elizabeth Ertz.

She opened her lips to say so when she remembered something she had said to Pat only a day or two before: "I shall love your friends just because they ARE your friends."

She had said that and she must stick to it... for a while at least. "All right. What time do they expect us?" she asked, docile and sweet as an obliging and obedient child. "And what shall I wear?"

There was nothing fashionable about the France family.

They were simple, comfortable people, who lived simply and comfortably and did not put on airs. Mrs. France set the kitchen table at 1 o'clock, with a colored cloth, set cold meat and fried potatoes, and hot rolls upon it, and announced that "dinner was ready."

Afterward Pat wiped the dishes for her, and then went across the lawn to the grocery store to take charge of it while his father came in to have his "dinner."

He ate it in his shirt sleeves, with a white linen grocery's apron tied around him, and his smile that was so like Pat's smile flashing at Lily as he talked to her.

"Sure you aren't going to miss all your friends in this new life?" he asked very sensibly. He was too clever and honest to pretend that they lived the same kind of lives.

"If there're my friends I won't have to miss them, will I?" asked Lily, smiling back at him from over the cigarette that she kept pasted on her lower lip while she talked. "If they really like me they'll still be my friends and Pat's, too, won't they?"

Mr. France shook his head. "Money makes a difference in this world in 'most everything," he said. "Your friends may think it doesn't, and you may think it doesn't—but it does, even in friendships. For instance, you and Pat won't have the money that the people you've always known have. And things like that raise a wall between people, in spite of themselves."

"I don't care," the girl answered. "I don't want anybody else while I have Pat."

But while she was speaking the thought of Sue Cain flashed through her brain. She wanted Sue, and not Sadye Jetterson, to "stand up" with her when she married Pat. She wanted someone from her old life to be with her then.

It would sound better, somehow, to people, when they heard that she had married her mother's chauffeur, if Sue Cain was with her at the time, Sue Cain was "somebody," she figured, still a snob at heart.

She got up from her kitchen chair, tossed her cigarette into the sink-strainer and went into the narrow little hall of the house to telephone Sue.

She was not at home. "She's at Miss Ann Barney's," the voice at the other end of the wire informed her, and Lily remembered that this was the day her bridge club met.

"I think I'll call up Ann and give her the news," she said to herself, and gave Ann's number to central.

"I'd give a farm to see her face when I tell her I'm not going to marry Staley, after all," she thought. She could imagine how Ann would enjoy that piece of news—quiet, self-contained Ann, who had been in love with Staley for so many years that everyone knew the state of her heart. Ann was the type that gives herself away, when she is in love with a man, not by ever speaking of it, but by the way she looks at him and flushes up when he comes near her.

"Poor old Ann!"

"Maybe she'll get Staley on the rebound," thought Lily, standing in the little hallway with its faded Brussels carpet and its wall paper that was cracked in places, although it was spotlessly and beautifully clean.

"This is Lily Lexington," Lily

told her. "I'm so sorry, Ann, that I won't be at your house for the card game today—and I should have told you know about it before this, but I never thought of it until this minute."

"That's quite all right," answered Ann, who never seemed annoyed and ruffled. Her voice sounded cold and far away. She never had particularly liked Lily—and Lily knew it. And since the day she had told her about her engagement to Staley Drummond, Ann had been slowly backing into her shell, so far as Lily was concerned.

She had not even telephoned to the card club at her house that day, and Lily would not have heard about it except through Sue Cain, who was always good friends with everybody.

"Is Sue there?" Lily asked. "May I speak to her, please?"

Ann said she would call her, and in a moment Sue's high, eager voice came over the wire. "Hello, Twin! What's on your mind?"

"Plenty," said Lily, with a laugh, and then she told her what she had done.

There was a long silence. At the end of it Sue said a little gasp. "Well, that says my soul!" she cried in her breezy, slangy, breathless way. "I can't believe you're making such an idiot of yourself! Look here, Lily, where are you?"

Lily told her.

"I'll be right down," Sue answered, and hung up the receiver before Lily could say another word.

Constipation Causes Ugly Skins Get prompt, safe relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Pimples, blotches, circles under the eyes—are all outward signs of the inward havoc this scourge plays. Constipation saps strength, wrecks health and causes many serious diseases. Guard against it. Do not let it drag you down to suffering and pain.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely and promptly. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Kellogg's is 100% bran—100% effective! That's why doctors recommend it.

Our Ten Pay Plan Contains every desirable feature that goes to make up the perfect plan for extended payments on clothing.

1. THE PLAN IS SIMPLE. A down payment of $10.00 is made at the time of purchase and the balance is divided into 10 equal, consecutive weekly payments. For instance—on a $30 suit you pay $10.00 down and $2.00 a week for ten weeks.

2. THE PLAN IS ECONOMICAL. By making it possible to pay for clothing out of income rather than in a lump sum out of savings, our customers are enabled to buy better grades of Griffon and Fashion Park clothing which in the end is always the cheapest. The habit of making weekly payments is one of the thriftiest habits possible.

3. THE PLAN IS PRACTICAL. The number of Ten Pay accounts opened has increased each month since the inauguration of the idea almost without exception. A very large proportion of customers have had two and more accounts showing that it has pleased them.

4. NOTHING ADDED. We make no added charge of any kind for this service. The assurance of a weekly income from all our Ten Pay Accounts enables us to render this accommodation without extra charge.

TO DISAPPROVE JAPANESE LOAN

GOVERNMENT FEARS JAPAN WILL ATTACK "OPEN DOOR" POLICY

Will Ask Guarantee
Money Not Be Used
In Exploitation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Fearing that Japan may be preparing to strike a serious blow at America's "open door" policy in China through the $40,000,000 South Manchurian railway loan it is seeking in New York, administration officials have decided to disapprove the proposed loan unless Japan gives definite guarantees that the money will be used solely for economic development and not for political or other exploitation, it was learned today upon the highest authority.

Utmost secrecy has thus far attended the negotiations, the state department refusing even to admit that the matter has been placed before it. But it is not denied that Thomas Lamont, New York banker, discussed the subject with department officials after his return from Japan a week ago.

In view of the momentous reaction the loan may have on American relations in the far east, if Japan uses it as an opening wedge to carry out its long-deferred hope of making Manchuria a Japanese colony, the question will be given the most serious study and consideration before the state department takes any action whatever, the International News Service was informed.

Protests against the loan have already been voiced in many Chinese quarters.

Chinese objections are based on the belief that Japan plans to use the proceeds of the loan for "imperialistic political and economic" ends. They assert that Tokyo has never given up its original plan, as expressed in the famous twenty-one demands of 1915, of annexing Manchuria and Mongolia to the Japanese empire.

American objections would be based on possible violation of the "open door" policy, which in effect denies to all foreign powers the right to obtain exclusive territorial or economic privileges in China. This policy will not, according to the interpretation put on it here, permit Japan to set up a railway monopoly in Manchuria, although Japan would not be prevented from operating a railway concession legally obtained.

Last July, however, Tokyo demanded that the Peking government abandon work on two Chinese lines being constructed parallel to the South Manchurian Railway. Inasmuch as no other railways exist in Manchuria, Japan would have a virtual monopoly if Peking accedes to this demand.

One half of the capital stock of the South Manchuria Company is owned by the Japanese government. Besides operating 636 miles of the three provinces, controls and operates mines, steel, electric power, and a chain of homes for the aged. The Chinese government, however, contends, help the Japanese strengthen the economic and political hold they now exercise through them.

DAUGHTER OF SLAIN WOMAN HEARD

CAROL DELAYS RETURN TO ROUMANIA

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Premier Bratianu's death does not mean my immediate return to Roumania," former Crown Prince Carol told International News Service today. "You can see that I am not making any hurried preparations for returning to Bucharest as you may have thought."

The ex-Crown Prince, who is the storm center of Roumania's political strife in which six years ago Michael's throne is the stake, received the correspondent at his chateau. On account of the early hour Carol was not yet dressed for the day and wore only his pajamas. He sat in the breakfast room sipping a cup of coffee and with a pile of Paris newspapers on the table before him.

Carol's attention was called to a report printed in a morning newspaper that the peasant party had sent him an invitation to return to his native land forthwith. Asked about this report, the former Crown Prince replied:

"I must still await further events in Roumania. The Morning Press says that the peasant party has sent me an invitation to return at once. I have not seen any such invitation."

"The conditions which I recently outlined to you regarding my return to Roumania cannot be worked out so soon after M. Bratianu's death. I prefer to make no prediction for the future. But any decisive move on my part is a matter of days, not a matter of hours."

AND A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL!

When Evelyn Nesbit (left) opened her new night club, Chas. Evelyn, on Broadway, one of the specially invited guests for the occasion was her ex-husband, Harry K. Thaw. Harry had a pleasant evening, refusing to pay the check and spilling over a ton of glassware, cutting a chorus girl. But it was all in fun, and Harry paid the bill the next morning.

GRANGE PASSES RESOLUTIONS AT CONCLUDING GATHERING

Favors Merchant Marine And Urges Outlawing Of War—Federal Education Subsidy Is Also Favored By Body.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—The National Grange was to bring its sixty-first annual convention to a close here today, following the report of the committee on resolutions, report of the committee on program and policy, final business session and installation of officers.

Owing to the pressure of business at hand, a night session was held last night by the Grange at which a nation-wide campaign against the use of women in cigarette advertisements was inaugurated. Additional resolutions adopted by the organization yesterday, follow:

Supporting the American merchant marine, because the Grange feels keeping the American flag on the high seas is one of the most important factors to the American farmers. Reports to the Grange have indicated that control of shipping by foreign interests causes a manipulation of rates to destroy any advantage American embargo may give.

Outlawing of war and favoring the United States government taking the lead in a move to place the institution of war outside and beyond the protection of the law.

That the Grange shall send representatives to the 100th anniversary of the American peace society meeting in Cleveland next year.

Private operation of water power, subject to certain franchise limitations, as recommended in the address of L. J. Taber, national master, to the effect that "franchise should never be granted for longer than fifty years, and then with the understanding that all improvements and expenditures be amortized and that at the end of this period the people should again find themselves in possession of their own property, free from any restriction because of previous utilization or occupation."

Proposed federal education subsidy which would provide ten cents a day to state schools for each pupil and fifty cents for each teacher.

Although decidedly averse to centralized control in any phase of government, the Grange accepted the plea of George Roxburgh, Flint, Mich., in favor of this resolution. Roxburgh pointed out that 80 per cent of the taxpayer's dollar returns to him when it goes to the federal treasury, but considerably less of it comes back after a collection by the state. A. S. Goss, of Seattle, father of the resolution, portrayed the government as the best tax collecting agency and Harry A. Caton, Coshocton, O., favored the resolution.

That the Grange favors legislative continuance of the ineligible alien clause of the federal immigration law and favoring national registration of all unnaturalized

WAR BREWS BETWEEN LITHUANIA-POLAND OWING TO INVASION

Army Prepares To Repulse Attack From Poles

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The dispute between Lithuania and Poland over occupation of the Lithuanian city of Vilna by Polish troops is approaching a crisis, according to a Riga dispatch to the Daily Mail today.

According to reports from Soviet Russia, Poland may attempt to annex all of Lithuania.

The Lithuanian army is being put upon a war footing, and has been ordered to repulse any Polish attack.

Georges Tchitcherine, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, is reported to have assured the Lithuanian government that it will have the full support of the Soviet red army in the event of aggressions by Poland.

According to the Daily Mail's Riga correspondent, considerable anxiety is felt at Kovno, the Lithuanian capital, over continued conferences of the Polish military chiefs at Vilna.

MOSCOW, Nov. 24.—That Poland is openly preparing for war against Lithuania was charged by the official newspaper Izvestia today. In an editorial warning Poland against Lithuanian aggressions, the newspaper said:

"The Soviets cannot be indifferent to the wanton destruction of small states. Poland, which had the opportunity to propose a world peace plan to the League of Nations in September, is now openly preparing for war against Lithuania. Conspirators have been armed to create trouble along the frontier."

BOMBS WRECK HOME OF POLITICIAN IN GANGSTER BATTLE

Believe Friend Of Gunmen Avenged For Not Helping

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Bombs replaced gangster guns in the last twelve-hour developments on the Chicago "front" and the home of Peter J. Spingola, power in the city hall and indirectly connected with prominent gangsters, fell in ruins.

Police attributed the bombing to members of a faction who decided Spingola had not exerted sufficient political influence in their behalf. A sister of the city hall politician married Angelo Genna, notorious racketeer. Henry Spingola, brother of Peter, was slain in a gangster war.

The bombing followed the slaying yesterday of Arthur G. Hariz, alleged prohibition snoop, Hariz, bullet riddled, was discovered on the banks of the drainage canal.

James Cole, gang leader and terrorist, died last yesterday of wounds received when he engaged with police in a gun battle.

Two alleged gambling and vice houses have been bombed in the last few days when owners refused to discontinue operating in territory controlled by "Scarface Al" Capone, generalissimo of the south side hoodlums.

YULE TIDE STILL TAKEN BY POLICE

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 25.—A 1,500-gallon still which authorities said was intended to furnish Toledo with much of its Yuletide cheer was in possession today of Michigan authorities. Leo Crispin, 24, of this city, was arrested when Michigan state prisoners and local authorities of Monroe, Mich., seized the still and 5,000 gallons of mash on a farm near Erie, 10 miles north of here, Thursday night.

CARDINALS ILL

FLAMES CLAIM TOLL OF SIX LIVES WHEN HOME IS DESTROYED

Seventh Victim May Die—Tragedy Occurs During Reunion

OGDENBURG, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Barry Leary, 16, one of the survivors of the early morning catastrophe here North Lawrence, which took a toll of six lives, was in a critical condition here today in Hepburn Hospital, suffering from burns and other injuries.

Those who met death in the fire that destroyed the farm home of Walter Leary, were: Arthur Leary, 50, brother of Walter Leary; Mary C. Leary, 21, student in St. Lawrence University at Canton; Evelyn Leary, 13; Rita Leary, 11; Esther Leary, 9; James Leary, 7.

They were attending a family Thanksgiving Day reunion. Walter Leary opened at about five o'clock and arose the kitchen door to find the room full of smoke. He awakened his wife and two daughters, Helen, 18, and Katherine, 19, who were asleep downstairs, and got them outside the house to safety.

Of the rest of the occupants on the upper floor, Marie Leary and Barry Leary were the only ones to escape.

RUTH REMUS CALLED TO GIVE TESTIMONY AGAINST PRISONER

Girl Expected To Tell Eye Witness Story Of Murder

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 25.—Drama and pathos will be written into the drab records of the Remus murder trial today.

Pretty, slim, dark-eyed Ruth Remus will take the witness stand this afternoon and tell an eye-witness story of the slaying of her mother, Imogene Remus, who was shot and killed by her stepfather, George Remus, the spectacular former millionaire bootleg king, in Eden Park, seven weeks ago.

Her story, in the opinion of Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, will clinch the state's case against Remus.

She will relate how Remus pursued the taxi cab in which she and her mother were riding, forced it to a curb, dragged her mother from it, pressed the muzzle of a pearl-handled revolver to the elder woman's body and pulled the trigger.

The twenty-year-old Ruth, alone, knew the circumstances that led up to the shooting; what actually happened in Eden Park, and what her mother said on the way to the hospital where she died.

Prosecutor Taft plans to put only half a dozen more witnesses, including Ruth, on the stand, and then rest his case.

Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., former department of justice agent, who is accused by Remus with having stripped him of his wife and wealth, will not be called by the state except, perhaps as a rebuttal witness.

Remus said today that the defense will call between ninety and one hundred and twenty-five witnesses, possibly more. He declared he would not be surprised to see the trial last two weeks more, even longer.

Taft said he is anxious not to have the trial run too long, as it is virtually impossible, he asserted, to obtain a conviction of first degree murder when Christmas thoughts and sentiments are in the minds of a jury.

"I have admitted the killing," said Remus. "The defense's big fight will be to prove that an accumulation of circumstances momentarily unbalanced my mind, and drove me to kill her."

Remus indicated he believed the state's contention that there was a conspiracy to kill Mrs. Remus, has collapsed.

He said he would bring forth rulings of Supreme Court Justice Taft on conspiracy to show that a conspiracy is not applicable to his case.

Young Taft, the prosecutor, laughed at the suggestion that Remus planned to use his father's rulings as a weapon against him, saying:

"We'll use Ohio Remus on ruling to combat Remus on that point."

Remus busted himself before court opened this morning in arranging the hundreds of volumes of his law library which he has recovered on mandamus proceedings.

PRISONERS DEFY AN ARMY OF OFFICERS IN CALIFORNIA JAIL

Report Truce Effected Before Battle Renewed—
Jail Break Turns Prison Into Shambles—
Convicts Hold Buildings

(BULLETIN)
FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., Nov. 25.—A truce has been effected between the mutineering prisoners and the army of authorities seeking to subdue them.

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., Nov. 25.—Flanked by machine guns, gattling gun emplacements, armored police cars and a bombing squad, a grim, silent army of 1,000 men today awaited the signal that would send them into a bloody prison battle that has already claimed the lives of nine men, left twenty-two others maimed and turned Folsom prison into a shambles.

Within the cell block, 1,200 desperate convicts, their ringleaders facing certain death and determined to sell their lives dearly, await the army of prison guards, police, deputies and 800 state troopers.

Nine men have been killed, five were reported to be dying and seventeen others were wounded during the battle here between prisoners and officers, a check of casualties disclosed early today. The sensational attempted jail-break began yesterday and the prisoners, still in possession of two buildings within the prison walls, were continuing to defy the attacking forces.

Six prison guards remain in the hands of the convicts. They have threatened to shoot the guards in cold blood if the attacking forces renew hostilities.

The dead:
Ray Singleton, a guard, stabbed and shot in leg.
Charles Giles, gate guard, died of heart failure during the height of the battle.
Seven unidentified prisoners.

The wounded:
Charles Gorham, a guard, seriously stabbed and shot in leg.
A. Massick, a guard, badly beaten, may die.
Walter Neil, a turnkey, seriously stabbed and shot in leg.
Al Deady, a guard, stabbed several times.
Barnett Huse, secretary to the warden, shot in leg.

Seventeen unidentified prisoners, three of whom are believed to be in a dying condition.
Between 1,200 and 2,000 prisoners are engaged in battle with more than 1,000 men who have been called out to frustrate the general break. The force of men now stationed at the prison include guards, militia, deputy sheriffs, police and volunteer citizens.

Governor C. C. Young has been summoned to the scene of the outbreak, to take charge of the situation.

The mutiny is considered so serious that machine guns were rushed here by airplane from San Francisco, and tanks have been ordered from the Presidio at Monterey.

Sentries reported early today that the prisoners were attempting to break through the recreation hall, one of the buildings in their possession, in order to get to food supplies in the adjoining dining hall. This would give them access to a food supply sufficient for weeks; it would also give them access to the new cellhouse, where several hundred prisoners are now locked in cells.

Authorities believe the convicts will fight it out to the last ditch and are preparing to meet the

YOUTH WOUNDED BY CHUM WHEN 'EMPTY' RIFLE DISCHARGED

Theron Flomerfelt, 15, In Hospital With Bullet In Thigh

Theron Flomerfelt, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flomerfelt, S. Detroit St., was shot in the left groin when a rifle he had carried on a hunting trip earlier in the day, was accidentally discharged by William Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clousie Anderson, Bellbrook Ave., Thursday evening at 5 o'clock.

Young Flomerfelt is in Essey Hospital, where he was taken after the accident. The shot lodged in the upper left thigh, an X-ray showed, but is not expected to result seriously. He was resting comfortably Friday.

The two boys had accompanied Frank Byers, Lower Bellbrook Pike and the Anderson boy's father, on a hunting excursion Thanksgiving Day. The Flomerfelt boy had borrowed the rifle from a relative but was warned not to take the gun hunting. They returned in the early evening, and Flomerfelt was cleaning a rabbit killed on the hunt, after "emptying" his gun. He is said to have tried the gun several times to be sure all cartridges had been removed.

Young Anderson picked the gun up and playfully pointed it at Flomerfelt, pulling the trigger. Dr. Marshall Best was called and rushed the boy to the hospital.

Anderson and Flomerfelt have been inseparable companions and young Anderson was prostrated by the accident.

CAMBRIDGE, O., Nov. 25.—The Akron Coal Company today had posted at its Guernsey mines an offer to confer with union miners with a view to terminating the coal strike.

The poster is addressed to employees of the Akron Coal Company and reads, "on account of the deadlock over the wage question which has existed since last March, representatives of the Akron Coal Company desire to meet with you for the purpose of trying to work out a plan to put the mines in operation."

"We believe it is worth while to try to end this deadlock which is causing so much suffering. We could explain why we cannot pay the Jacksonville scale."

The poster suggests that the meeting be held at the Murray Hill and Senecaville mines.

prisoners in a like manner. Three of the ringleaders have been identified. They are named Stokes, Stewart and Brown, all of vicious character and each an expert with a gun. Floyd Hall, another desperate killer, is also with the rioters. Anticipating that the prisoners might succeed in attempting to cut the electric wires within the prison, authorities last night brought reserve searchlights outside the walls and prepared to cut them in on an outside power line.

Dr. T. W. Day, the prison physician, was one of the outstanding figures in the rioting of yesterday. He was able to arrange a temporary truce and entered the old cell block and attended the wounded and dying convicts. It was Dr. Day who brought word to the outside that the infuriated convicts intended to kill the captured guards if officers moved against them.

The mutiny began yesterday without warning. Nothing unusual had occurred on Thanksgiving Day. Some of the prisoners were attending a motion picture show and others were milling about in the yard awaiting a chance to get into the show.

Suddenly Charles Gorham, a guard, was surrounded by several prisoners. Placing a knife at his back, they marched him to a door leading to the administration building. They threatened the guard with death if he did not order the turnkey, on the other side, to open the door. The turnkey not having the keys, Gorham's order could not be obeyed. Gorham was promptly knifed and his captors, yelling started running through the cell house.

Then bedlam turned loose. A volley of shots rang out. Where the prisoners got their arms and ammunition is not known. Ray Singleton was hit by one of the first shots. A convict stabbed him as he fell. His body was picked up by other guards who raced for the door. Among them was Walter Neel, who was shot and stabbed as he carried his keys to safety.

During the general melee, Al Dealy, a guard was stabbed.

Meanwhile, while other guards were repelling the convicts from rushing the main gate, Warden Smith and his secretary, Barnett Huse, were trapped in the administration building.

Smith and Huse made a dash for safety just as machine gunners and guards, armed with tear bombs, launched an attack against prisoners in the library building. The prisoners answered with a hot fire. Huse was struck in the hip by one of the bullets. He was not seriously wounded. Warden Smith reported.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, a great many enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

Reducing Helps

As you know, I advise you who need to reduce to attend institutions that have medical supervision and give supervised exercises, baths, massage, etc., if you can. For the fact that you are paying out your good money, helps you to keep to your diet better.

O, yes, you have a diet also! You can put on much more than any help will take off, if you don't watch your calories.

There are many—those who are excessively overweight or have heart disease or high blood pressure, etc.—who cannot take active exercises, and the mechanical appliances such as the rollers, body shakers, abdominal massage machines, and other apparatus, can be used, for they do not cause any strain on the heart. As in active exercise, however, it is wise to begin with only a small amount and gradually increase such exercises. I advise you to attend such institutions if you can. But poor me! I ruin my reputation if I am seen at one, if I am to judge of a conversation I had with a woman guest—we had not been introduced—when I came to the Battle Creek Sanitarium this time on my third visit. She was complaining that while she did not come to reduce, she needed to and was not losing. I asked her how many calories she was on, and if she did not take more food than the dietitian marked off for her on her menu?

"Humph!" she sorta sneered. "I don't pay any attention to calories. There's nothing in knowing about them. Why, that Lulu Hunt Peters, who wrote that famous book on calories, has to come here when she wants to reduce, so I've been told!" "Well," I sweetly responded, "the next time you hear that deny it, please. Tell your informant that you have met Dr. Peters, and that she comes here for a rest and to study their methods. She may reduce a few pounds while here, but she does not have to come to reduce."

"But I haven't met her!" she slightly indignantly responded. Then I introduced myself, and we had a good laugh together.

Yesterday I gave you a Thanksgiving menu such as they serve at the Battle Creek Sanitarium. If you missed yesterday's paper I wish you would get it, for I know you will enjoy the Mock Turkey Roast, for which I gave the recipe.

As I told you, I am spending the tag end of my vacation here, trying to get some work done that I promised to do on my vacation; and incidentally I am going to try to get off some of the excess ten pounds I put on while in Los Angeles. It really is difficult for me to reduce here, for I am very fond of their vegetarian cuisine and I have the very good excuse that I want to sample many of the different dishes so that I can write about them.

There is a cooking school connected with the institution, where they teach their cookery and it is most popular. After the things are cooked a good time is had by all, for the dishes that are cooked are passed around to be sampled. You'd be surprised—no, you wouldn't, if you are overweight—to see the large percentage of the reducing patients that attend! Then you'd understand when they complain that they were not reducing.

There are always a great many guests here who are reducing, but most of them come because they have acquired one or more of the many disorders that come with excess weight, and so come here for their disorder, and are reduced at the same time. The patients are assigned to different dietitians, who get instructions from the doctors on the type of diet that is necessary.

You will find patients who are having to reduce and those who are having to gain at the same time. That's pretty hard on the reducers! But it's good to develop strength of character, I suppose. I mark my own menu (another reason I don't reduce much here). The protein, fat and carbohydrates of each portion are listed. Many of the guests come for a rest and tanning up, and they are allowed to mark their own menus if they like. Today, at my table, one of these guests called one of the dietitians over, saying that she had gained two or three pounds, and she didn't want to. She has been taking a lot of the acidophilus buttermilk, and she asked the dietitian if that was fattening. I was glad to hear the dietitian explain, "All foods are fattening if they are taken in excess of your needs. All we can say is that some are less fattening than others. Buttermilk contains approximately half the number of calories that whole milk does—that is, if it is ordinary buttermilk, or is made with skimmed milk—because the fat has been removed."

That sounds familiar to you, doesn't it?

TO RELIEVE STOMACH DILATION, GAS

Dilation of the stomach usually arises because excess stomach acid causes food to ferment and form sour gasses which are responsible for those unpleasant sensations of swelling and fullness, often very painful.

To avoid and relieve stomach dilation take a tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after meals or when pain is felt. "Pape's Diapiesin" neutralizes acidity and prevents the formation of wind, heartburn and flatulence, and insures healthy, painless digestion.

Druggists everywhere sell "Pape's Diapiesin" at 60 cents a package—not much to pay for complete freedom from digestive pain and stomach troubles. Is it? Better get your package of "Pape's Diapiesin" to-day. —Adv.

PRESERVING SECONDARY ROADS

"Public Roads," published by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, in a recent issue contains a remarkably fine report on roads in Oregon and California which have been treated with light asphaltic oil.

In both these states, hundreds of miles of gravel and macadam roads have been built to connect with the paved highway systems. The traffic on many of these roads is extremely heavy, and the problem has been how to save the rock from being thrown to the sides of the road or being blown away in dust.

Conclusions reached in the report are that any road in the states investigated, which has justified improvement with fine crushed rock or gravel surface, warrants the additional expense of a light oil treatment except possibly in rare instances of isolation, extraordinary cheap material supply, or low service requirements.

The treatment of oil not only effects a saving of the road material, but saves wear and tear on automobiles and preserves farm crops along the highway which are destroyed by dust.

The report will be of interest to many states which have similar conditions to those found in Oregon and California.

THE FARMER AND THE NEW AGE

Our great new era of industrial, business and mechanical perfection has given many comforts and commodities to the farmer. The radio, electric lights and power, the telephone, railroad expansion, the automobile—all have done their bit. But one of the greatest gifts of all has come into general farm use since the war—the tractor.

Plowing that would have taken a week under old methods has become the work of a day. Irrigation trenches are dug with comparative ease. Road-making has been revolutionized by the squat, queer track-laying machine that is unaffected by weather, or soil conditions, or seemingly insurmountable barriers.

The best part of it is that the tractor's day is still in the dawning. More and more farmers are converting it to their uses, with tremendous success. They have learned that prosperity comes by adopting modern methods.

SPIRIT OF AGE DEMANDS

EFFICIENT SERVICE

The country has prospered amazingly by the Coolidge common-sense economy program. Judicious expenditure of tax funds is not mere political expediency, it is a vital attribute of sane government. The country should prosper as greatly during another four years of old-fashioned persistent economy. Honest government means as much to the laborer as it does to the millionaire; it is his protection in his job, his home, his taxes, his store bills, everything that he has.

The Coolidge personality is not essential; the Coolidge attitude towards his job and his responsibility is vital in a public servant.

Coolidge may not be the next president; but any candidate of whatever party with lower ideals of unselfish service will be a bad investment.

HAPPINESS

Once a wise man said: "Happiness grows at our own firesides, and is not to be picked in strangers' gardens." If you do not find happiness in your home it is, perhaps, because you have not planted the seeds of happiness there. Or, having planted them, you have not stayed around to watch them grow.

TROUBLES

Looking over an old newspaper clipping one finds that a famous French fortune teller predicted dire disasters for the year 1924. The year 1924 has gone by and who can remember any unusual troubles? It is like other years—the years that have gone and the years to come. There are troubles in all years—griefs, disasters, joys and sorrows. The years average up. Bitter with the sweet. And sometimes or other the children of men adjust themselves to their circumstances and struggle along. There isn't much to worry about. What feels have stood, other folks can stand. It's not what you get, but how you take it. That's the main thing.

LOCARNO

Not so long ago the great actions of the world were momentarily inspired by the seven treaties of Locarno. War was to become impossible by agreement. But since then enormous budgets have been prepared and passed. Ships of war have been built or put under way. Armaments have been increased and strengthened—and the same old war talk flourishes.

The treaties of Locarno will not stop war. It would be better to begin by re-writing school histories and putting war in the right light and shadow before the eyes of youth. The present generation loves war. Is it not possible to raise up a generation which will hate war?

CREATING DISCONTENT

Karl Bickel, a newspaper man, says: "It is advertising that has brought the British workman to a determination to improve his scale of living; it is advertising that bred in his mind a disgust of unsanitary quarters, for the dull, hard, desperately colorless, dreary life that has been his lot."

When advertising creates a discontent with the insufficiencies of life, it has stimulated in better things and it has performed a great service.

DIVIDENDS

Speaking of happiness, it is a dividend for which an investment must be made.

The Daybook

OF A
New YorkerBy
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Having been recently handed a check in a night club, which asked forty-seven dollars for four bottles of ginger ale and orders of chop suey, this story does not sound so good. Turkey, a noble fowl, is very popular in Broadway eating places and the other night I ordered a hot sandwich. Upon receiving the same, I found two slices of alleged turkey, barely separating the two slices of bread. It must have taken years to invent the machine that carved it. Without exaggeration, I was unable to pick the meat up with a fork, unless the former was supported by a piece of bread. My own quite plausible explanation for this is that the meat was thin enough to let the fork touch the hard plate before it touched the meat. That sounds complicated. I know, but if you stop to figure it out, you'll admit it's a pretty fair gag for me. Anyway, I later paid a dollar for my sandwich.

We know some people who moved to the suburbs to secure a little peace and quiet. The husband is an artist who requires an extra room at home to use as a studio, the wife has a job which takes her into the city daily. They had a car which was expensive to keep in town, so they decided the ideal arrangement for them was to live in an apartment in a Westchester suburb about fifteen miles out, an apartment in a building a stone's throw from the station. The public garage faced this building directly across the street. They congratulated each other on the seeming convenience of their new living quarters, moved out, bought commutation tickets—and then began to suffer. They discovered the various noises made life unbearable. They had not minded greatly the incessant hum of town, the sound compounded of far off subway rumblings, elevated train ditto, the vast inarticulate and incessant din of the metropolitan street in which they had lived. But they could not endure the ever present noise of passing suburban trains, nor the hullabaloo set up early each morning by the village taxi men in the garage just below their windows. Then the town began some street improvements and an electric drill to bore through the old pavement was sent in motion. Some blasting had to be done for new telephone cables. The young couple in complete despair paid the landlord $200 to let them out of their lease. They sold their car, because they determined to move back to town. And now they are packing up their goods, after one month's tenancy, to move back to the comparative quietude of the East Flats. They moved out of New York seeking peace and quiet. They are moving back for the same reason.

Among other things New York seems to be a good place for the breeding of prodigies. It is the home of Nathalia Crane and of Elizabeth Benson, as well as of many musical geniuses. Elizabeth Benson is the twelve-year-old student at Barnard college whose treatise on "The Youngster Generation" has just been published and was released on the same day that her mother's first novel, "Jackson Street," was placed on the stands. Elizabeth's mother is Anne Austin, the distinguished of the names, being due to a divorce of the prodigy's parents. It will be remembered that Elizabeth "broke the scale" of an intelligence test contrived for superior adults.

IRELAND

From my Irish Diary:
Except for a few signs in Gaelic, the dock here at Cobh might be at Hoboken. Indeed, my traveling mate, who is a bit of a kiddier, seems to think that maybe there is some mistake and it may not be Ireland after all. He stops at the foot of the gang-plank, gets down his grip and holds a brief whispered conversation with a man in uniform who replies with a decided rising inflection, "IT IS."

Then he turns and beckons to me.
"Come on. This is the place," he says, "This is Ireland."

And he is right. A moment later we are on Irish soil.

Most of the other passengers landing here are not tourists but native Irishmen returning from America. Some have been there on a visit but most of them have adopted America as home and are back here to see the old folks. All seem elated over being back. I have heard a dozen men murmuring: "Dear old Ireland!" This little old green isle does inspire love in her children!

The customs officer who examined my baggage seemed concerned only about one commodity—tobacco. I assured him that I had no tobacco except two little packages of American cigarettes. He hefted one of these in his hand for a moment and gravely shook his head before deciding that it was too small to figure duty on.

Things are beginning to look expression over in County Sligo.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

CRAZY WITH FEAR
"Oh me, oh my, oh goodness me!" hissed the Serpent in great glee. "That is the funniest thing I ever heard. Don't open my eyes in shedding season? Of course I don't, for I never close them all the year around. I can't—no eyelids! I told you that before. No, indeed, 'tis through no act of mine that I am unable to see. 'Tis all the fault of a mean, milky mist that comes over my eyes just when it comes time for me to get a new suit. H—s—s! You can't guess how uncomfortable it is. Sometimes when I am blundering around I feel quite dizzy. I hate it, and at the same time I know I could not get along without it, for in a short while it hardens. And when I cast off my old clothes and lose my plate glass windows there is not get it—no plate glass window all ready—one as clear as crystal and as glitteringly beautiful as the old one ever was."

"Made out of that mist?" asked Peter, for he wanted to be sure.
"Made of that mist!" declared Rattler, and added wisely: "And that is one time, at least, in a Rattler's life when the thing that he dislikes the most does him the most good."

Peter remembered a remark that the Serpent had made, and asked curiously:
"But Rattler, if the same thing happens over and over again—if you lose your eyesight every shedding season—what makes you go crazy with fear that you will not get it back again?"
The Serpent looked at the boy as though he could not have heard him right.
"Where did you get that idea?" asked he.
"Why, from you, Rattler. Only a few moments ago you went crazy with fear. You know you did."

Serpent looked puzzled for a minute, then he nodded.
"Oh yes, so I did!" acknowledged more Irish. To begin with, there's plenty of delightfully rich brogue, though thus far nobody has said: be-jabbers. Back of the station are several boys with jaunting cars. I was so interested in them and looked at one so minutely that the driver became suspicious and wondered what I might be up to. He laughed unproportionally when I told him that I had never seen one before, and refused to believe me.
"Everybody must have seen a jaunting car," he said.

On the boat an Irish acquaintance told me of a fellow named Michael Lynch who has a good little American car for hire. Partly from curiosity, partly from jaunting, I sent him a wireless message, asking him to meet us at the dock. And he was, there, a tall, handsome devil with charming manners. He raises polo ponies for the American market and hauls tourists about—and a grand life it is, he says with enthusiasm.

As we started to plan our day, Mike asked what we most desired to see.

"I'd like to meet personally two fellows named Pat and Mike who say be-jabbers to one another," he told us that he himself had never heard an Irishman say be-jabbers, but that his old uncle once spoke of having heard the standard round metal vanities for ged he, "But I didn't mean what you mean. I do go crazy with fear, but not because I am worried about my sight. I am half out of my head imagining all sorts of horrible things—that some great animal will step on my head with his mighty hoofs before I, being blind, can glide out of his way; that my enemy and at other times my victim, the bird, will peck at me while I am lying, unprotected, in the open; that some Two-Legs will crush me—it is the fear of all these things that makes me so dangerous to all the world at shedding time. That is why, at the slightest sound, I coil and strike, and strike again, maddened and made bold with fright."

LET YOUR VANITY EXPRESS YOU

"Vanity, vanity, all is vanity" might well be said of the present trend in women's styles, for the little case that carries milady's rouge and power has come into such prominence that it is every bit as important as her purse, her gloves, her jewelry. In fact, some of the new vanity cases are veritable jewels themselves for decorative value.

There is a new mode now that recently got its start in Paris and has been gaining great momentum in the last month or two in America. This is the vanity case to harmonize with each dress and to match her bag or black to go with a black and white costume, perhaps the same shade as a green suit or evening gown. The lipstick of the chic modern matches her vanity case, and both are used with all the flourish and pride of the fans of yesterday.

The present array of vanities which one sees make their appearance at cafes and teas are such a variety of attractive shapes that one is prone to wonder how in the world we ever stuck to the standard round metal vanities for

Suggestions

Romper Rules
The United States Department of Agriculture has issued a leaflet on materials and best ways of making children's rompers. Romper rules, as compiled by the department for the aid of young mothers was begun in this column yesterday and are concluded below today:

The belt across the front and the belt on the top of the drop seat should be divided at the side seams so that the front buttons will not have to be unfastened to drop the back.

Rompers should be generously long between the shoulder and the crotch and wide between the legs to assure freedom.

All points receiving strain, such as crotch seams, plaques and pocket tops, should be stayed and double stitched.

The side opening romper and the triangular or oblong flap rompers are best suited to the diaper age.

The color and proportions of the garment should suit the child.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—"The very nerve" is the state department's reaction to the suggestion of a League of Nations official observer at the Pan-American conference in Havana next January.

It's an alarming idea, at that. The Latin republics in the Pan-American union wouldn't consider it just a beginning, to a certainty. With that much start, Uncle Sam would be in a good deal of the fix of a person with his clothes caught between the grinding cogs of a big machine, slowly snaking him in. He might tear himself loose, but minus his clothes.

No non-member of the union can attend its conference without a majority vote—so Secretary Kellogg says.

Yes, but how keep the league from getting a majority vote? Besides this country, the Pan-American union has 20 members. Nearly, if not quite, every one would be tickled pink to vote to plague us any time they all knew we couldn't do anything about it—and here's a case where Uncle Samuel couldn't very well send marines.

About the only way we can even hope for a majority, if this thing comes to a vote, is by promising so much per vote, and they'll take our eye teeth. This will be too good a chance to miss.

It wasn't the League of Nations, it was Latin America which thought up this scheme of wishing a league unofficial observer onto the Havana conference.

To be exact, it was Panama. The others jumped at it, to be sure, and the league seems to have fallen for it like a thousand of brick.

That was natural. It suits the league powers' purposes to horn in on what we've always regarded as our own national little private snap—for really, of course, we always have run the Pan-American union, in spite of the majority against us, notwithstanding all the official bunk.

As for the Latin-American republics, their game isn't to burst up the union, but to have something to play off against it, the Monroe Doctrine, too—that is, the league.

The Latin-Americans have their spots of disliking us—such as whenever we're telling Mexico where to get off.

Their chronic frame of mind toward us, however, isn't dislike, but suspicion, which is natural enough. We're too big a neighbor to be safe. They can see how we might be very useful to them, if only they could eliminate the risk—if they could hobble us, some way.

Yes, they're afraid of us, but they wouldn't care to trade off their fear of us for a corresponding act of fears of Great Britain and France and Mussolini, say. They realize that they may need us, any time, to stand off the other fellows; but, then again, occasionally they may need the other fellows to stand us off—if they can.

That's what Latin-American always is figuring on, and is attempting to semi-stir the League of Nations into the Pan-American union is a sample of it.

Pretty slick, too!

It's a move Washington will have to do some tall thinking to block.

As diplomacy they can equal anything Europe has to offer between the Rio Grande and Cape Horn. In comparison, we're not one, two, three, except when we win by making our own rules.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOE GIBSON

Have you ever noticed that beautiful women are the ones who think they're beautiful?

One almost comes to believe, when looking at beautiful women who are over forty, that thought is the greatest factor in beauty, and unless one is really sure in one's own mind that one is looking well, one will never reach the pleasant acme of beauty.

Have you ever watched a famous beauty for any length of time?

You must have noticed her assured air. She knows she is beautiful and realizes that others know it also. Consequently she speaks, moves, and acts just as a woman who is famous for her beauty should be.

She has formed a habit of being beautiful.

You probably are familiar with Thackeray's famous quotation: "Sow a thought, you reap a word; sow a word, you reap a habit; sow a habit, you reap a destiny." Habits rules over lives, and if we wish beauty to be a part of our destiny, why not make a habit which leads to its possession?

"As a man thinks so is he." This is just as applicable to the cultivation of beauty as in other lines. If you would be beautiful after maturity, you must think beautiful thoughts and look out upon a beautiful everywhere.

Ugliness is always a lack of harmony, and this means ugliness of soul as well as physical ugliness.

When you see only the beautiful side of life, because you see only beauty in everything, you will take a long step on the road which leads to the formation of the habit of being beautiful.

So, if you would be beautiful in the true sense of the word, form the habit of being what you wish to be. Work hard to develop beautiful characteristics. They are the most potent beautifiers known.

Try to be happy under all circumstances, for happiness is not only a state of mind, but one of the finest cosmetics known.

Feel that the world has nothing but beautiful things to give you, and even when things do not extend to your liking, strive to realize that whatever is a habit.

When you can find something to help you in every emotional experience, every circumstance of life, your own particular little heaven has come.

Memo: Carry the habit of being beautiful into every part of your life and it will reflect to others and so bring back to you that which you desire.

Deadlocked Romances

Most of us know at least one couple who have "gone together" for years without getting any nearer to matrimony than when they first met. Sometimes it is the man's fault, and sometimes the woman is averse to giving up her freedom, or her job, and the romance seems deadlocked. What should one advise in such a case where one of the couple is dissatisfied?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a young man several years, and we are engaged. I know he has his mother to support, but I do not understand him of late. My parents are asking questions as to our being married. They treat him very nicely, but after he leaves, they give me a sermon. They have tried to get me to quit, he says he loves me and I love him dearly. He has a good job. Now, Mrs. Lee, do you think I should tell him about my parents or what should I do for the best? He never tells me anything definite about our marriage.

"KATHERINE."

If you want to be married, Katherine, I think you should have an understanding with your fiancé. Either talk to him yourself or have your father talk to him. If you like to keep on as you are it is nobody's business but your own. You do not say why you think he may be tiring of you, so you will have to be the sole judge of that, judging from his actions.

A little girl writes to know if I consider 14 too young for a girl to go out with boys.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl of 14. I have not been out with any boy in all my life. My mother thinks I am too young. My brother is 17 but she does not think him too young. I was asked to go with a boy a year ago, but I would not go because I knew mother would not like it. Do you think I am too young if I do not keep late hours and do

"I don't doubt your loyalty to the party," read the letter; "but I think the boys would like it a good deal better if you paired with Democrats instead of Republicans."

Central High Battles Springfield To 6 To 6 Tie

XENIA OUTPLAYS BLUE AND GOLD IN THANKSGIVING DAY CONTEST

Team Closes Season With Three Wins, Three Defeats And Four Ties—Turkey Day Battle Fitting Climax

By PHIL FRAME

FIGHTING with a new-found fury, an inspired Central High School football eleven fought throughout sixty minutes of play to a 6 to 6 tie with Springfield High School in the fourth renewal of their annual Thanksgiving Day struggle for gridiron supremacy Thursday afternoon at South Side Field, Springfield.

For the first time in the years of rivalry between the two schools, the rival elevens quit the field with honors even. Perhaps it was better thus for all concerned, as the no decision affair permitted each school to close its football season with a record of an even number of games won and lost. It was the fourth tie game played by Xenia this year.

If a moral victory is to be awarded, the choice would undoubtedly go to the Blue and White, which outplayed, outsmarted and outgeneraled the Gold and Blue elevens throughout the contest.

Spectacular plays netted both teams touchdowns in the second quarter, which was the limit of the scoring. After that it was give and take.

Xenia was the first to score, due to a beautiful fifty-five yard run by Captain Morton through a broken field. Receiving a kick on his own thirty-eight yard line, the Central leader gathered in the ball and galloped to Springfield's seven-yard line before being brought down by a diving tackle by "Sparky" Adams, sensational colored half back. Adams was so badly injured on the play he was forced out of the contest.

With the ball in a scoring position, Buell plunged through guard over the line on the first play. Gibney's place kick for the sorry needed extra point, was low and was blocked.

Springfield took to the air to receive its first touchdown in the same period. Xenia kicked off to Springfield's ten-yard line. Kirk, subbing for Adams, ran it back thirty-five yards. After one play had failed to gain, the home eleven was penalized fifteen yards for clipping. A Xenia lineman broke through and partially blocked Davidson's punt, which was good for only fifteen yards.

Central lost twelve yards on a poor pass from center and Captain Morton kicked accurately out of bounds on Springfield's fifteen-yard stripe. Davidson promptly punted and Morton fumbled in mid-field, Belcher recovering for Springfield.

A series of line plays brought the ball deep into Xenia territory and a pass, Patterson to Captain Davidson, was completed for twenty yards and a touchdown that evened the count. Springfield tried to fake pass play for extra point but Higgins sneaked through the line and tackled the ball-carrier before he could get the pignikin away. The half ended shortly afterward.

The opening quarter was featured by a punting duel between the rival captains, Morton and Davidson, with the Xenia pilot having a distinct edge. Springfield was entirely on the defensive in this period.

Throughout the first half, Xenia was strictly the aggressor, tearing into the line and secondary defense with a ferocity it had not shown in previous games. The Central stalwarts in this part of the contest swept Springfield off its feet, literally and figuratively.

Throughout most of the second half, a stubborn defense on both sides neutralized most of the attacks.

Shortly after the third quarter had gotten under way, Morton's punt on his own fifteen yard line was partly blocked and Springfield recovered on the thirteen-yard line. Conn made in first down on the three-yard line on one plunge.

It was here that Xenia's line displayed a heroic defense. Springfield backs stabbed desperately to pierce the Blue and White wall, only to find it stone. Three plunges took the ball to the three-inch line. On the fourth down, Conn charged the center of the line to cross the few inches that meant a touchdown, but when the players were untangled, the ball lacked three yards instead of inches from being over.

Morton hit the line for no gain and then dropped back to punt. He was hurried and kicked out of bounds on his own ten-yard line. Patterson hurried a pass to Davidson, who had a clear field for a touchdown, but the Springfield captain slipped in the muddy going on the four-yard line.

Once more Springfield was set back by the determined stand of Xenia's line and surrendered the ball on downs. This time Xenia rushed out of danger.

In the fourth quarter, the play was almost entirely in Springfield's territory. On one occasion Xenia brought the ball to Springfield's twenty-yard line. Captain Morton turned end for a first down on Springfield's forty-three and then a pass, Morton to Bell, was completed for a twenty-three yard gain. Line plays and passes were unavailing and Xenia lost the ball on downs on the sixteen yard line. Near the end of the period Morton kicked to Springfield's twenty-two. Beard, safety man, fumbled, and Mowen recovered for Xenia, on the thirty-five. Morton tackled for three and Scurry added two more, the game ending with the ball on the thirty-yard line.

Xenia appeared to be at its best this season despite a week of poor practice because of inclement weather.

Xenia registered seven first downs as compared with six for Springfield.

Captain Morton closed his scholastic career in a blaze of glory. He was, without a doubt the individual star of the day. His kicking was also above the average and he consistently out-punted his opponent except for the one or two occasions when he was forced to hurry the hoofs.

Other players also stood out prominently. The play of Scott and Higgins on the line is worthy of special mention. Bell, who will be

ANNUAL TURKEY DAY CLASSIC ENDS WITH ELEVENS TIED 12-12

Failure To Register Extra Points Fatal To Both Elevens

BEFORE 7,000 spectators, the Wilberforce University and West Virginia Institute battled to a 12 to 12 tie in the 1927 renewal of their annual Turkey Day football struggle at Neil Park, Columbus, Thursday afternoon.

Two touchdowns were registered by each eleven but each team was unfortunate in that it did not possess a reliable playmaker to kick the point after touchdown, otherwise the deadlock would have been broken.

West Virginia, as always, furnished unexpectedly stiff opposition.

Wilberforce confined its scoring to the second period and registered its first touchdown on an eighty-yard yard march from its own fifteen-yard line.

Campbell, halfback, started the ball rolling when he broke through the scrumline and ran forty-six yards through a broken field. The reliable Ward added fifteen yards on the next play and then a pass to Ward placed the ball on the ten-yard stripe. "Buddy" Tynes, plunging fullback, carried the ball to within a foot of the goal line, and Campbell shot across on the next play. Harding missed the try for extra point.

Undisciplined, the invading Southerners came back in the same period to even the score. A Wilberforce fumble was recovered by a West Virginia lineman on the Ohio team's thirty-yard mark. A well-executed pass, Branch to Huddle, placed the pignikin on the eleven-yard line. After two line plays, McConnell plunged across on the third attempt, for the touchdown. Nash missed the dropkick for extra point.

Before the half ended, Wilberforce scored once more by taking advantage of a "break." Harding sailed a long punt from his own thirty-yard line to the West Virginia five, where Nash, safety man, fumbled, and Ward recovered for Wilberforce on the one-foot line. Mendenhall went over on the next play. Harding again failed to tally the sorely-needed point.

Fighting with grim determination, West Virginia rallied to even the count again in the third period. Nash returned the opening pick-off to the Wilberforce forty-three to start his team off in the right fashion. McConnell gained thirteen yards in three straight line smashes and then West Virginia took to the air.

A pass, Branch to Nash, was completed on the fourteen-yard stripe. Then line plays were attempted and on the fourth plunge, McConnell ran across the final line for a score. West Virginia then switched its tactics and attempted to complete a pass for the point which meant victory, but the aerial was intercepted.

Both elevens tried desperately to break the dead lock in the final quarter but the defensive play prohibited further scoring.

Wilberforce obtained two breaks in the final quarter but lacked an offensive punch at critical moments and could not take advantage of them.

On one occasion, Ward tried a place kick from the West Virginia thirty-five yard line, but the boot lacked distance. Nash, using poor judgment, caught the kick near the goal posts, and was downed on his three-yard line. Nash then uncorked a poor punt which traveled only eighteen yards but Wilberforce could gain only six yards on four plays and lost the ball on the twelve-yard line. The game ended soon afterward.

Wilberforce thus closed another one of its most successful seasons, having won five games, tied two and lost one, by forfeit. Discounting the forfeit, Wilberforce piled up 154 points to its opponents' eighteen during the season. The team's goal line was crossed on but three occasions.

SPRINGFIELD AUTOIST KILLED AT CROSSING NEAR OSBORN

One person was killed and another injured, not seriously, when a sedan disputed the right-of-way with a Big Four freight train and was wrecked at the Clark County line between Xenia and Osborn, at 1:45 o'clock Thursday night.

Harry Kohl, Sr., 58, 204 Willis Ave., Springfield, dairyman, was killed instantly while Mrs. Alice deCoy, 223 S. Center St., Springfield, Kohl's companion in the car, sustained deep cuts about the face.

The woman told hospital attendants that she and her companion were returning to Springfield after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Lena Wilson, of near Wright Field.

Sheriff Walter S. Lewis, Clark County, who was investigating another minor accident about 200 yards from the crossing at the time, learned from the engineer on the train that the sedan was driven up to the crossing, stopped and then drove in front of the train, the driver apparently not noticing the train.

The engineer declared he blew the whistle several times and eye-witnesses of the crash confirmed his testimony.

MANILA, Philippines, Nov. 24.—Philippine municipalities can restrict the sale of liquor or forbid it altogether, rules the supreme court of the Philippine islands in

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how:

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead take a little cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. In fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after turning down the petition of a Zamboanga liquor dealer for refund of taxes amounting to $1,000, which he claimed were so high as to ruin his business.

The Philippines are the only place under the American flag where inhabitants are free to drink or not, as they choose. The constitution does not apply to the islands, in accordance with the Jones Act. The American secretary of state some years ago made an attempt to prohibit the importation of liquor into the Philippines by forbidding American consuls abroad to issue bills of health to ships carrying consignments of liquor for the Philippines. The insular government evaded this order easily, by the simple process of fitting such ships only $10 each, instead of the usual fine of $2,000 or more for vessels entering the Philippines without clean bills of health.

The only way to make the Philippines dry is by a special act of the American congress. People here do not seem to be worrying much about that.

Cascara's ideal form is the candy cascaret that pleases any palate, and you'll find them at the first drugstore you ask.

ACCUSED TEACHER EXONERATED WHEN CHARGE WITHDRAWN

Withdrawal of a charge of assault against Miss Leona Drewes, teacher in the McPherson grade school in Spring Valley Twp., and dismissal of the case by R. O. Casey, justice of the peace, is regarded by the teacher and school officials as complete vindication.

An affidavit sworn out Wednesday by Clyde Faulkner, Lower Bellbrook Pike, charging the teacher with assaulting his twelve-year-old son, Robert, pupil in the seventh grade at the McPherson school, was withdrawn by the father Thursday.

An explanation of the case was furnished Friday by school officials, who exonerated Miss Drewes from blame for the incident.

The affidavit accused the teacher with striking the boy while attempting to discipline him Wednesday. School officials, preparing to defend the teacher, expected to introduce witnesses who would testify that the teacher did not strike the youth, school authorities said Friday. School officials said Friday they had every confidence in Miss Drewes and supported her policy in disciplining the boy.

Improvement was noted Friday in the condition of Mrs. Ernest Bradford, Treble Road, confined in McClellan hospital with serious injuries sustained when her coupe skidded and upset in a ditch on Lucas hill, Dayton-Xenia Pike, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Bradford suffered fractures of the collar-bone and two ribs, injuries to the left lung and bruises on the legs, an X-ray examination made at the hospital Thursday morning, disclosed.

Mrs. Bradford was driving home when the coupe skidded on the slippery roadbed and overturned in a ditch on the west side of the pike, after she had applied the brakes while descending the hill.

A cake of ice in the car bruised her legs. Passing motorists assisted her in climbing out of the car and an ambulance took her to the Xenia hospital.

AUTO DAMAGED WHEN IT STRIKES WAGON

A sedan driven by William L. Wike, taxi driver, of near Yellow Springs, formerly of Xenia, was slightly damaged when it collided with a wagon on the Cincinnati road, two miles south of Xenia, Wednesday night.

The accident occurred near the home of Roby Bartlett, who was driving the horse and wagon toward Xenia.

Attempting to pull around the wagon and avoid the heavy traffic, Wike drove the machine into a long coupling pole extending from the rear of the wagon.

TRUCK DRIVER HAS HAIR SINGED WHEN GAS CATCHES FIRE

Raymond Kelly, truck driver for the Red Wing Co., narrowly escaped being burned when the truck caught fire as the rear tank was being filled with gasoline at the Peoples Oil Co. filling station, Lower Bellbrook Ave., Friday morning at 8:03 o'clock.

Kelly was leaning over the tank as the station attendant was filling it with gasoline, when the fuel suddenly blazed into flame, becoming ignited in some unknown manner.

The driver jumped backward but not before his hair had been slightly scorched.

The damage was slight. Firemen, answering the alarm, extinguished the flames with chemicals.

YOUTH FREED AFTER PROBE OF ACCIDENT

Earl Helronimus, 17, Selma, arrested Wednesday by O. H. Cornwell, Greene County road patrolman, for Springfield authorities in connection with an auto accident Tuesday night in which Milton Canada, 75, Selma, sustained serious injuries, was released following an investigation by Deputy Sheriffs Stanley Hathaway and Adolph Long, of Clark County.

Cornwell made the arrest at the direction of Sheriff Ohmer Tate, acting upon instructions from Springfield.

The boy was taken to South Charleston and held by Marshal Charles Sprague until the arrival of Clark County deputy sheriffs. The accident was termed "unavoidable." Helronimus was said to have driven the auto which struck the aged man as he was crossing a street in Selma. Canada sustained a torn scalp and neck, and a broken shoulder and kneecap. His condition remains critical.

The Theater

A birthday is being celebrated this week in Times Square, a first anniversary which means as much to Broadway as anything which has struck the famous street of amusements in months and months.

It is the end of the first year of operation of the Paramount Theater, most conspicuous of all New York's amusement centers, located "at the crossroads of the world." During this year, a mighty parade of more than 5,200,000 persons passed through the doors of this theater. This means an average of more than 100,000 a week. The

READ THIS FIRST:

LILY LEXINGTON, the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, who have always lived far beyond their means, is engaged to a rich bachelor, STALEY DRUMMOND. The wedding day is set for June.

The day after Staley proposes Lily goes downtown to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by him. Then she sees that he is a taxi driver. But moved by some sudden, strong impulse, she jumps into his cab, forgetting Sue Cain, and he drives her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He tells it to raise money to finance a piston ring invention of his, and tells Lily he is going to get some other kind of work.

As the days go by it becomes clear to her that she is in love with him. But about the time she firmly makes up her mind that she cannot marry Staley her mother announces the engagement and she resigns herself to marrying him on the tenth of June. Then, along about the tenth of May she walks into the back yard one morning to look at a new car that her mother has bought, and the new chauffeur, who is polishing it, is Pat France! He admits that he took the job because it enables him to be near her until the time of her wedding—and Lily wonders if that wedding will ever take place after all. For she falls more and more deeply in love with Pat, and while he says she will never make a poor man's wife, he is just as ready in love with her. He takes her to meet his friends, the Jettersons, and she instantly detests SADY JETTERSON, who is flamboyant and loud and cheerful. Then she goes to meet his family—his mother and father and sister, FLORENCE—on a night after Staley Drummond has learned about her attachment for Pat from a discharged maid, Carrie. The next morning Mrs. Lexington, determined to get rid of Pat, tells him he will have to wait on table that night. Pat packs up to go, and Lily makes a quick decision to go with him. Mrs. Lexington stops Pat in the yard, and Lily comes up to them to hear the news that her mother doesn't want her to marry Pat until the next day. She asks why. Pat gets a job in Roy Jetterson's garage, tells Lily the Jettersons will "stand up" with them when they marry, and are going to give them a party that night. Lily who has met SADY JETTERSON, dislikes to go to their house, but says she will.

(Now go on with the story.)

CHAPTER XXII

Mrs. France opened the oven door and took out a pan of the biscuits, golden brown and shining with butter. She set them on the top of the "hot chest" of the big, white-canvas stove, and put a pan of unbaked ones into the oven.

"Is that the Sue Cain who rides so much?" she asked, giving Lily and the cigarette-smoke clouds a look that Lily did not see. "I often notice her name in the paper."

"Yes, that's Sue Cain," answered the girl, absently. She was wondering how Sue Cain would take this marriage of hers. "Would she still be her best friend, or would she think that she ought to be loyal to Staley and drop her?"

"Sue's Jack and Staley were great friends."

Quick footsteps came around the house and Pat opened the screen door.

"Well, I'm all set!" he announced, tossing his hat up on the hooks beside the door. "Roy's given me a job in the garage—and he and Sadye are going to stand up with us when we're married. They're going to give us a little blow-out at their house tonight, too. Isn't that kind of them? They're the salt of the earth, Lily."

"Yes, they're very nice people," his mother said quietly. "But Mrs. Jetterson wears her skirts too short. It doesn't look right for a grown woman to show that much of her body—she wears them almost to her knees."

She glanced at Lily's skirt that was just above hers, as she looked in the kitchen chair. But Lily did not notice her glance. She was looking at Pat and frowning. . . . She didn't want to go to the Roy Jettersons' that night. She didn't want to be friends with that fat-faced, pink woman who was such a great friend of Elizabeth Ertz.

She opened her lips to say so when she remembered something she had said to Pat only a day or two before: "I shall love your friends just because they ARE your friends."

She had said that and she must stick to it. . . . for a while at least. "All right. What time do they expect us?" she asked, docile and sweet as an obliging and obedient child. "And what shall I wear?"

There was nothing fashionable about the France family. They were simple, comfortable people, who lived simply and comfortably and did not put on airs.

Mrs. France set the kitchen table at 1 o'clock, with a colored cloth, set cold meat and fried potatoes, and hot rolls upon it, and announced that "dinner was ready."

Afterward Pat wiped the dishes for her, and then went across the lawn to the grocery store to take charge of it while his father came in to have his "dinner."

He ate it in his shirt sleeves, with a white linen grocery apron tied around him, and his smile that was so like Pat's smile flashing at Lily as he talked to her.

"Sure you aren't going to miss all your friends in this new life?" he asked very sensibly. He was too clever and honest to pretend that they lived the same kind of lives.

If there're my friends I won't have to miss them, will I?" asked Lily, smiling back at him from over the cigarette that she kept pasted on her lower lip while she talked.

"If they really like me they'll still be my friends and Pat's, too, won't they?"

Mr. France shook his head. "Money makes a difference in this world in most everything," he said. "Your friends may think it doesn't, and you may think it doesn't—but it does, even in friendships. For instance, you and Pat won't have the money that the people you've always known have. And things like that raise a wall between people, in spite of themselves."

"I don't care," the girl answered. "I don't want anybody else while I have Pat."

But while she was speaking the thought of Sue Cain flashed through her brain. She wanted Sue, and not Sadye Jetterson, to "stand up" with her when she married Pat. She wanted someone from her old life to be with her then.

It would sound better, somehow, to people, when they heard that she had married her mother's chauffeur, little Sue Cain was with her at the time, Sue Cain was "somebody," she figured, still a snob at heart.

She got up from her kitchen chair, tossed her cigarette into the sink-strainer and went into the narrow little hall of the house to telephone Sue.

She was not at home. "She's at Miss Ann Barney's," the voice at the other end of the wire informed her, and Lily remembered that this was the day her bridge club met.

"I think I'll call up Ann and give her the news," she said to herself, and gave Ann's number to central.

"I'd give a farm to see her face when I tell her I'm not going to marry Staley, after all," she thought. She could imagine how Ann would enjoy that piece of news—quiet, self-contained Ann, who had been in love with Staley for so many years that everyone knew the state of her heart. Ann was the type that gives herself away, when she is in love with a man, not by ever speaking of it, but by the way she looks at him and flushes up when he comes near her.

"Poor old Ann!"

"Maybe she'll get Staley on the rebound," thought Lily, standing in the little hallway with its faded Brussels carpet and its wall paper that was cracked in places, although it was spotlessly and beautifully clean.

"This is Lily Lexington," Lily

told her. "I'm so sorry, Ann, that I won't be at your house for the card game today—and I should have let you know about it before this, but I never thought of it until just this minute."

"That's quite all right," answered Ann, who never seemed annoyed and ruffled. Her voice sounded cold and far away. She never had particularly liked Lily—and Lily knew it. And since the day she had told her about her engagement to Staley Drummond, Ann had been slowly backing into her shell, so far as Lily was concerned.

She had not even telephoned to let Lily know about the meeting of the card club at her house that day, and Lily would not have heard about it except through Sue Cain, who was always good friends with everybody.

"Is Sue there?" Lily asked. "May I speak to her, please?"

Ann said she would call her, and in a moment Sue's high, eager voice came over the wire: "Hello, Lily! What's on your mind?"

"Plenty," said Lily, with a laugh, and then she told her what she had done.

There was a long silence. At the end of it Sue gave a little gasp. "Well, that slays my soul!" she cried in her breezy, slangy, breathless way. "I can't believe you're making such an idiot of yourself!—Look here, Lily, where are you?"

Lily told her.

"I'll be right down," Sue answered, and hung up the receiver before Lily could say another word.

Get prompt, safe relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Pimples, blotches, circles under the eyes—are all outward signs of the inward havoc this scourge wreaks. Constipation saps strength, wrecks health and causes many serious diseases. Guard against it. Do not let it drag you down to suffering and pain.

Our Ten Pay Plan

Contains every desirable feature that goes to make up the perfect plan for extended payments on clothing.

1. THE PLAN IS SIMPLE.
A down payment of $10.00 is made at the time of purchase and the balance is divided into 10 equal, consecutive weekly payments. For instance—on a $30 suit you pay $10.00 down and $2.00 a week for ten weeks.

2. THE PLAN IS ECONOMICAL.
By making it possible to pay for clothing out of income rather than in a lump sum out of savings, our customers are enabled to buy better grades of Griffon and Fashion Park clothing which in the end is always the cheapest. The habit of making weekly payments is one of the thriftiest habits possible.

3. THE PLAN IS PRACTICAL.
The number of Ten Pay accounts opened has increased each month since the inauguration of the idea almost without exception. A very large proportion of customers have had two and more accounts showing that it has pleased them.

4. NOTHING ADDED.
We make no added charge of any kind for this service. The assurance of a weekly income from all our Ten Pay Accounts enables us to render this accommodation without extra charge.
